

The Banner

Brighton news for Brighton readers

Perhaps a little Brighton, June 6, 2008

United Power flips switch to solar

United Power's Roy Whisman kept counting toward... "I'm hoping to see 'solar' after a while," says "solar."

With Whisman's solar collection in a field just north of the electrical company's parking lot, the company is now producing electricity... with the help of more than 20 solar collectors, which will cost nearly $1 million, says Whisman.

That's what United Power (UP) is doing. Whisman says the solar collectors will be installed in a field just north of the company's parking lot. The solar collectors will be installed in a field just north of the company's parking lot.

Because you asked

People who want to know more about the solar collectors... People who want to know more about the solar collectors... People who want to know more about the solar collectors...

People who want to know more about the solar collectors... People who want to know more about the solar collectors... People who want to know more about the solar collectors...

This is your newspaper

The local news in each week's Banner will be selected by you - our readers. You have your questions, comments, suggestions.

The folks who bring you Local Color and the Daily Post are also the folks who bring you the Banner. We're not just a newspaper; we're a community. We're not just a newspaper; we're a community.

Garden party Members of the Banner's 40-member Garden Party are working in a field just north of the company's parking lot. The garden party is a community event where people can help with the solar collectors.

Art, run enliven Culturefest

Many artists, some with connections in New York and London, have agreed to exhibit work at an art show at the Brighton Cultural Center.

The show is a community event where people can help with the solar collectors. The show is a community event where people can help with the solar collectors.

Meet the Banner's editor

Banner editor Mark's background brings more than 20 years of daily newspaper experience to the local role as editor of the new Banner.

Mark has been a reporter and editor at the Pueblo Morning Express, the Pueblo Daily Post, and the Pueblo Daily News. He has been a reporter and editor at the Pueblo Morning Express, the Pueblo Daily Post, and the Pueblo Daily News.

Sharing the wealth Brighton, Ben Lutz, State Park, and the Eagle Mountain Recreation Area are open to the public. Brighton, Ben Lutz, State Park, and the Eagle Mountain Recreation Area are open to the public.

Reader drives Why should a newspaper editor or publisher drive you? This is the question that we ask you. Why should a newspaper editor or publisher drive you? This is the question that we ask you.

The Banner

Brighton news for Brighton readers

Perhaps a little Brighton, June 6, 2008

United Power flips switch to solar

United Power's Roy Whisman kept counting toward... "I'm hoping to see 'solar' after a while," says "solar."

With Whisman's solar collection in a field just north of the electrical company's parking lot, the company is now producing electricity... with the help of more than 20 solar collectors, which will cost nearly $1 million, says Whisman.

That's what United Power (UP) is doing. Whisman says the solar collectors will be installed in a field just north of the company's parking lot. The solar collectors will be installed in a field just north of the company's parking lot.

Because you asked

People who want to know more about the solar collectors... People who want to know more about the solar collectors... People who want to know more about the solar collectors...

People who want to know more about the solar collectors... People who want to know more about the solar collectors... People who want to know more about the solar collectors...

This is your newspaper

The local news in each week's Banner will be selected by you - our readers. You have your questions, comments, suggestions.

The folks who bring you Local Color and the Daily Post are also the folks who bring you the Banner. We're not just a newspaper; we're a community. We're not just a newspaper; we're a community.

Garden party Members of the Banner's 40-member Garden Party are working in a field just north of the company's parking lot. The garden party is a community event where people can help with the solar collectors.

Art, run enliven Culturefest

Many artists, some with connections in New York and London, have agreed to exhibit work at an art show at the Brighton Cultural Center.

The show is a community event where people can help with the solar collectors. The show is a community event where people can help with the solar collectors.

Meet the Banner's editor

Banner editor Mark's background brings more than 20 years of daily newspaper experience to the local role as editor of the new Banner.

Mark has been a reporter and editor at the Pueblo Morning Express, the Pueblo Daily Post, and the Pueblo Daily News. He has been a reporter and editor at the Pueblo Morning Express, the Pueblo Daily Post, and the Pueblo Daily News.

Sharing the wealth Brighton, Ben Lutz, State Park, and the Eagle Mountain Recreation Area are open to the public. Brighton, Ben Lutz, State Park, and the Eagle Mountain Recreation Area are open to the public.

Reader drives Why should a newspaper editor or publisher drive you? This is the question that we ask you. Why should a newspaper editor or publisher drive you? This is the question that we ask you.

In the tradition of quality journalism you've come to expect from Local Color® and The Daily Post, Banner Press is proud to announce ...

The Banner

Brighton news for Brighton readers

- Watch for Brighton's new weekly newspaper, coming soon
- Local news inspired by you • Locally owned
- Committed to our community
- Committed to providing quality journalism

Introductory Special:

First 4 weeks FREE / Satisfaction Guaranteed

Send form and $27 payment to Banner Press, P.O. Box 1006, Brighton, CO 80601

Yes, sign me up for my first 4 weeks free and the next 12 months (52 issues) for $27. If at any time I wish to cancel, the value of my remaining issues will be refunded.

Date _____ Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

In the tradition of quality journalism you've come to expect from Local Color® and The Daily Post, Banner Press is proud to announce ...

The Banner

Brighton news for Brighton readers

- Watch for Brighton's new weekly newspaper, coming soon
- Local news inspired by you • Locally owned
- Committed to our community
- Committed to providing quality journalism

Introductory Special:

First 4 weeks FREE / Satisfaction Guaranteed

Send form and $27 payment to Banner Press, P.O. Box 1006, Brighton, CO 80601

Yes, sign me up for my first 4 weeks free and the next 12 months (52 issues) for $27. If at any time I wish to cancel, the value of my remaining issues will be refunded.

Date _____ Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____